Re: Campaign finance report

I am in receipt of the letter you mailed me by certified mail relative to a report that you say was due 10 days before the general election.

I filed the appropriate report after the primary election which enumerated all monies received since previous report and all monies expended during that same period. That report represented all there is to tell about my campaign finances.

I did not take out any loans. The personal funds I expended were not funds loaned to the campaign with the hope of recovering them later. All expenses, to my knowledge, have been paid and reported.

I did not understand that I was required to file a 10 day prior to General Election report if all transactions had been reported and I was defeated in the Primary Election. If that interpretation of the rules is incorrect, then my report is late but there is nothing to report.

If an error has occurred, it certainly was not intentional. I was under the impression that we had complied with the law.

Very truly yours,
